To all our valued customers, suppliers and partners

I am pleased to announce that Mainframe Communications Limited has now changed its name to Folan Technologies Ltd with effect from 1st July.

This has been a planned part of the integration into the Folan group business since acquisition and signifies the completion of this integration.

We are hugely excited about this and enables us to fully offer the global capability within Folan, alongside the local expertise and reactivity that Mainframe has always and will continue to provide.

All other details for the company remain unchanged, the name change will be a seamless transaction for our customers and suppliers and the only changes necessary for you will be the change of company name

If there are any queries or if a copy of letter of the name change needed, please reach out to me or your normal contact.

We look forward to continuing to work with you and growing our partnerships.

Scott
